SPONSORSHIP & PROMOTIONAL OPPORTUNITIES

SPONSORED SATELLITE PROGRAMS

Engage directly with the global nutrition science community through a Sponsored Satellite Program—an exclusive opportunity for industry, trade organizations, government agencies, scientific societies, and other groups to showcase cutting-edge research, share insights, and spark dialogue on pressing topics.

83% of survey respondents indicated NUTRITION 2025 Sponsored Satellite Programs added moderate to tremendous value to their experience.

OVERVIEW

Sponsored Satellite Programs provide an opportunity for external groups – industry, commodity boards, trade organizations, government, universities, other scientific societies, etc. – to share and discuss research findings with the nutrition science community in conjunction with American Society for Nutrition (ASN) scientific meetings. Sponsored Satellite Programs provide attendees with additional educational opportunities. Sponsored Satellite Programs are not considered part of the official ASN program, and ASN does not endorse the content presented or their proceedings, publications, etc.

Proposals for Sponsored Satellite Programs are reviewed by ASN and criteria for acceptance include:

- Programs must be objective and balanced.
- Content must contribute to the field of nutrition science.
- Programs must meet the educational needs of meeting attendees and complement the science program.
- Program descriptions and accompanying materials must be science-based and not promotional in nature.

NEW FOR NUTRITION 2026!

Attendees have asked for more opportunities to connect—and ASN partners have asked for more ways to reach targeted audiences. We're excited to introduce two new sponsored sessions designed to do both:

Morning Mingle: Host a Morning Mingle—a one-hour, sponsor-hosted session featuring coffee* and casual conversation. Share a topic and foster a discussion. Connect with targeted attendees like physicians, dietitians, department heads or early-career professionals while sharing your message in a relaxed, engaging setting.

*Sponsorship includes coffee service for 50 attendees. Additional food and beverage may be arranged at the sponsor's expense.

Evening Buzz: Wrap up the day with an Evening Buzz—a one-hour, sponsor-hosted session designed for relaxed networking and lively conversation. Connect with key attendees while spotlighting your organization in a social, engaging atmosphere.
